Rome Orders Neon Cutback

ROME, Jan. 26 (AP).—The municipal authorities set out to dim Rome's lights today in an effort to give the city more of its old look.

The authorities ordered shops, hotels and restaurants to get rid of or drastically tone down neon lights, protruding signs and showy display windows. The first orders covered 17th-century streets near the Spanish Steps and the Via del Corso, stretching a mile from Piazza del Popolo to Piazza Venezia. Some 500 streets were in cluded in a list of centers of historical and artistic interest in downtown Rome.

Italy to Hold Referendum On Divorce

By Paul Hofmann ROME, Jan. 26 (NYT).—The Constitutional—Court, Haly's highest tribunal—reled today that a referendum on repeal of the 13-month-old Divorce Act is legal. ident Giovanni Leone must choose a Sunday between April 15 and June 15 as the date for a popular vote on the highly emotional divorce issue. The divorce referendum will be the first exercise in direct democracy since the Italians, by a slim majority, voted out the Savoy monarchy in the plebiscite of June 2, 1946. Petitions for a referendum on divorce carried the signatures of nearly 1.4 million enfranchised citizens. The constitution of 1948 required only 500,000 petitioners for a referendum. The anti-divorce drive was promoted by groups of conserva-tive Catholics with the backing of many bishops and priests and the active support of the neofascist party-

War of Religion' Moderate Catholics and political parties that favor the divorce legislation are at present discussing how to avoid the referunleash a "war of religion" and increase tensions in Italy. One way of staving off the referendum would consist in having the Divorce Act amended by parliament so as to appease the edvocates of repeal and induce them to withdraw their petitions. Proposals for amendments that would improve protection of innocent parties in divorce cases have already been introduced in the Senate. The promoters of the referendum said today, however, that they will insist it he held, action_ Another method of getting around the referendum, at least this year, would require President Leone to disband parliament and call anticipated elections in the spring. In this case, the referendum would have to be postponed

by at least a year. Political Meaning

The referendum problem is weighing heavily in the present government crisis. Premier Emilio Colombo the head of the outgoing administration, is ettempting to succeed himself by forming another center-left cabinet. While the premier's own Christian Democratic party is on record as favoring the divorce referendum, although some of its factions are unenthusiastic about it, other center-left groups demand that the referendum be set aside before they consider renewed cooperation in another Colombo government.

If Mr. Colombo were to fall in his effort to set up a new administration, President Leone would almost certainly ask some other Christian Democrat—posalbly. former Premier Mariano Rumor—to form a caretaker cobinet and disband parliament. Since the embattled act became operative in December, 1970, Italian courts have granted an estimated 10.000 divorce decrees.

Lest May Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev called on Western powers to test Soviet intentions on ways of reducing troop levels and armaments in Central Europe, but diplomats were left wondering whether he envisaged reduc-tion of national forces as well as those from elsewhere.

The West considers that a reduction only in foreign troops would weaken Western defenses more than Eastern ones, since American troops would have to travel much greater distances to reach Central Europe in an emergency than would the Rus-

The statement on troop reductions came in a long declaration at the end of the Warsaw Pact's two-day summit meeting here and contained an indication that the Soviet Union and its allies do not consider that discussion of the issue should be purely on a NATO-Warsaw Pact basis.

The method of solving this problem cannot be the sole affair of existing military-political units in Europe. An appropriate consensus of opinions could be reached on the form of negotiating this question," the declaration

Hanoi, Viet Cong Rebuff Nixon Plan

Thieu's Ouster Called Reds' Main Condition

By Fred Farris

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (IHT).—President Nixon's closest foreign policy adviser. Henry A. Kissinger, reported today that last August the United States offered North Vietnam the complete withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam by Aug. 1, 1972, plus a general cease-fire in exchange for the release of U.S. prisoners of war.

In response, Mr. Kissinger said, the North Vietnamese asked the United States, among other things, to oust or "change" the government of South Vietnam as a prerequisite to ending the war Mr. Kissinger, who President Nixon disclosed last night had proposal. He spoke at a lengthy White House news conference as part of Mr. Nixon's plan to publicize the secret negotiations, which are deadlocked, like the publicly conducted Paris talks.

Mr. Kissinger said the offer of a troop withdrawal by Aug. 1 was made at a secret meeting with North Vietnamese officials in Paris last Aug. 16. This was the first time the White House had disclosed it had offered a fixed date for withdrawal. He said the main obstacle in negotiating with Hanol and the Viet Cong remains their insistence that the United States replace the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu either directly or indirectly.

Mr. Kissinger said the United States was not prepared to do that, and asserted that the Communists "want us to achieve for them what they have not been able to accomplish themselves"—the overthrow of South Vietnam's government. He also said that the Communists had demanded that the United States withdraw all military and economic aid to South Vietnam, including the army's weapons. President Nixon disclosed last night in his televised speech that President Thieu and Vice-Presi-dent Tran Van Hoong had agreed to resign a month before internationally supervised new elec-tions were held. They would be open to the Viet Cong. Nine-Month Limit

The President said that followplete withdrawal of U.S. and allied forces within nine months after an agreement on an overall settlement," North Vietnam rejected the plan on Sept. 13 and "continued to insist that we overthrow the South Vietnamese government."

Mr. Kissinger said today that North Vietnam's position was that Washington should set a date for withdrawal regardless of whether there was a prisoner exchange and that this would be a one-sided, U.S. pullout.

He characterized Hanoi's demand for the pullout of both U.S. troops and all aid to Saigon as a prescription for unilateral withdrawal, North Vietnam, he said, was getting between $500 million and $1 hillion in aid.

Mr. Kissinger said the Nixon administration was not bound to any political structure for a future South Vietnamese govern-"Our principle has been that we want a political evolution that gives the people of South Vietnam. a genuine opportunity to express their preference," he said. "We have searched our souls and tried to come up with a proposal that seems free to us." Importance Emphasized

He said that Mr. Nixon's proposal of elections in South Vietnam after the resignation of President Thieu was "not just a trivial proposal" but of pivotal importance in that country's political future. Hanol, he said, wanted the United States to replace South Vietnam's present government and agree to a replacement structure that would virtually insure a Communist takeover. "They have further asked usand we don't want to be forced to prove it-to directly overthrow the South Vietnamese government," he said.

By Craig R. Whitney SAIGON, Jan. 26 (NYT) .--

President Nguyen Van Thien, speaking on national radio half an hour after President Nixon disclosed the contents of secret discussions between the United States and Communist representatives at the Paris peace talks, implied that the South Vietnamese had had no such discussions themselves, but he endorsed the latest American proposals.

Mr. Thieu spoke in Vietnamese; and no official translation of his remarks was immediately available here. Most of Mr. Thieu's speech concerned his proposal to resign one month hefore a new internationally supervised general election that would include the Communist political forces in

Mr. Thieu made an election proposal on July 11, 1969, but did not specify then who would control the electoral machinery, or even that the elections would concern the presidency. But in his speech and in a communiqué released by the South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry, Mr. Thieu said that a presidential election to be organized and run by an independent body comprising all the political forces of South Vietnam, including the agreement and the withdrawal of all American and allied forces that President Nison proposed.

The Vietnamese president also said that the elections would be supervised by an independent international supervisory body, but he did not spell out the details of how it would be constituted or run. His speech was textually and substantively similar to President Nixon's, which was broadcast live here on the Armed Forces Television Network an hour before Mr. Thieu went on the air.

There were indications that until the last 24 hours, not even Mr. Thieu knew the details of the secret negotiations referred to by Mr. Nixon. Even today, press spokesmen for the American Embassy here said they did not have e full text of Mr. Nixon's

In their statement tonight, the North Vietnamese said that in both the public and the secret meetings, "the Nixon administration did not respond to the two questions fundamental for the just and logical peaceful settlement of the Vietnam problem."

It said the United States (1) refused to withdraw its forces and arms, dismantle its bases and "cease all air and naval ectivities as well as other acts of war against the Vetnamese people in both zones of Vietnam" and (2) "persisted in maintain-ing the group of Nguyen Van

Details on Meetings

In describing in detail his recent meetings with Communist delegates, Mr. Kissinger said that at the Aug. 16 session, in addition to offering total troop withdrawal by Aug. 1, 1972, "for the first time we included a declaration of the American willingness to limit our aid to South Vietnam if North Vietnam would limit its aid" from the Soviet Union, China and other Communist countries.
"On Sept. 13," be continued,

"North Vietnam turned down the offer because the withdrawal date was too long" and it did not include a U.S. pledge of political neutrality that would remove support from the Thieu government. The United States, Mr. Kissinger went on, then returned with an offer to shorten the deadline—to six months, as President Nixon reported last nightand gave a precise political formula about how free elections in South Vietnam could be orga-

Nixon's Report to the U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan.26 (UPI). -The full text of President foreign policy statement last night:

I have asked for this television time tonight to make public a plan for peace which can bring to an end the war in Vietnam,

The offer that I shall now present, on behalf of the government of the United States and the government of South Vietnam, with the full knowledge and approval of President Thieu is both generous and far reaching.

It is a plan to end the war now; it includes an offer to withdraw all American forces within six months of an agreement; its acceptance would mean the speedy return of all the prisoners of war to their homes. Three years ago when I took office, there were 550,000 American fighting men in Vietnam: the number killed in action was running as high as 300 a week; there were no plans to bring any Americans home; the only thing that had been settled in Paris was the shape of the conference I immediately moved to fulfill a pledge I had made to the American people: to bring about a peace that could last, not only for the United States, bot for the long-suffering people of South-There were two honorable paths open to us. The path of negotiations was, and is, the path we prefer. But it takes two to negotiate; there had to be another way in case the other side refused to negotiate.

Vietnamization

That path was called Vict-namization. This meant training and equipping the South Vietnamese to defend themselves, and steadily withdrawing Americans as they developed the capacity to do so.

The path of Vietnamization has been successful. Two weeks ago, I announced that by May 1 be down to 69,000. That means almost one-half million Americans will have been withdrawn from Vietnam over the past three years. In terms of American lives, the losses of 300 a week have been reduced by over 95 percent—now less than 10 a week

But the path of Vietnamization has been the long voyage home, straining the patience and testing the perseverance of the American people. What of the shortcut—the path of negotia-

Progress there has been disappointing. The American people deserve an accounting of why it has been disappointing. Tonight I intend to give you that accounting, and in so doing, to try to break the deadlock in the negotiations.

We have made a series of public proposals designed to bring an end to the conflict. But early in this administration, after 10 months of no progress in the public Paris talks, I became con-vinced that it was necessary to explore the possibility of negotiating in private channels, to see whether it would be possible to end the public deadlock

Secret Missions

He has met seven times with Le Duc Tho, one of Hanol's top political leaders, and Minister Xuan Thuy, head of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris talks. This is why I initiated these private negotiations: Privately. both sides can be more flexible in offering new approaches. Also private discussions allow both sides to talk frankly, and to take positions free from the pressures of public debate.

In seeking peace in Vletnam with so many lives at stake, I felt we could not afford to let any opportunity go by-private or public-to negotiate a settlement. As I have stated on a number of occasions, I was prepared and remain prepared to explore any avenue, public or private, to speed negotiations to end the war. For 30 months, whenever Secretary Rogers, Dr. Kissinger or I were asked about secret negotiations, we would only say we were pursuing every possible channel in our search for peace. There was never a leak, because we were determined not to jeopardize the secret negotiations. Until recently, this course showed signs of yielding some progress.

Now however, it is my judgment that the purposes of peace will best be served by bringing out publicly the proposals we have been making in private.

Nothing is served by silence when the other side exploits our good faith to divide America and to avoid the conference table. Nothing is served by silence when it misleads some Americans into accusing their government of failing to do what it has already done. Nothing is served by stience when it enables the other side to imply possible solutions publicly that it has already relected privately.

The time has come to lay the record of our secret negotiations on the table. Just as secret negotiations can sometimes break a public deadlock, public disclosure may help to break a secret dead-

Some Americans, who believed what the North Vietnamese led them to believe, have charged that the United States has not pursued negotiations intensively. As the record will show, just the opposite is true.

Onestions

Questions have been raised as to why we have not proposed a deadline for the withdrawal of all Amreican forces in exchange for a cease-fire and the return of our prisoners of war; why we have not discussed the sevenpoint proposal made by the Viet Cong last July in Paris; why we have not submitted a new plan of our own to move the negotiations off dead center.

As the private record will show, we have taken all these steps and more—and have been flatly rejected or ignored by the other

On May 31, 1971, eight months ago, at one of the secret meetings in Paris, we offered specifically to agree to a deadline for the withdrawal of all American forces in exchange for the release of all prisoners of war and a cease-fire. At the next private meeting, on June 26, the North Vietnamese rejected our offer. They privateproposed instead their own nine-point plan which insisted that we overthrow the government of South Vietnam.

Five days later, on July 1, the enemy publicly presented a different package of proposals-the seven-point Viet Cong plan That posed a dilemma: Which package should we respond to, the public plan or the secret plan?

On July 12, at another private meeting in Paris, Dr. Kissinger put that question to the North Vietnamese directly. They said we should deal with their ninepoint secret plan, because it covered all of Indochina, including Laos and Cambodia, while the Viet Cong seven-point public proposal was limited to Vietnam.

And Beyond

That's what we did. We even went beyond that, dealing with some of the points in the public plan that were not covered in the secret plan.

On Aug. 16, at another private meeting, we went further and offered the complete withdrawal of U.S. and allied forces within nine months after an agreement on an overall settlement. On Sept. 13, the North Vietnamese rejected this proposal. They con-tinued to insist that we overthrow the Sooth Vietnamese government What has been the result of these private efforts? For months, the North Vietnamese have been berating us at the public sessions for not responding to their side's publicly presented sevenpoint plan.

The truth is that we did respond to the enemy's plan, in the manner they wanted us to respond - secretly, In full possession of our complete response, the North Vietnamese publicly denounced us for not having re-sponded at all. They induced many Americans in the press and

New Effort

I decided in October that we should make another attempt to break the deadlock. I consulted with President Thieu, who concurred fully in a new plan. On Oct. 11 I sent a private communication to the North Vietnamese that contained new elements that could move negotiations forward, and urged a meeting on Nov. 17. Just three days before the scheduled meeting they said Le Duc Tho was ill. We offered to meet as soon as Le Duc The recoverwith him, or immediately with any other authorized leader who could come from Hanoi. Two months have passed since they called off that meeting. The only reply to our plan has been an increase in troop infiltration from North Vietnam and Communist military offensives in Laos and Cambodia. Our proposal for peace was answered by stepup in the war. That is where matters stand today. We are being asked publicly to respond to proposals that we answered, and in some respects accepted, months ago in private.

We are being asked publicly to set a terminal date for our withdrawals when we have already offered one in private. And the most comprehensive peace plan of this conflict lies ignored in a secret channel, while the enemy tries again for military victory.

That is why I have instructed Ambassador Porter to present our plan publicly at this Thursday's session of the Paris peace talks, along with alternatives to make it even more flexible. We are publishing the full details of our plan tonight. It will prove beyond doubt which side has made every effort to make these negotiations succeed. It will show unmistakably that Hanoi—not Washington or Saigon-has made the war go on. Here is the essence of our peace. plan: public disclosure may gain it with the attention it deserves in Hanol.

Within six months of an agreement: • We shall withdraw all U.S.

and allied forces from South Viet-· We shall exchange all pris-

• There shall be a cease-fire throughout Indochina.

• There shall be a new presidential election in South Vietnam. President Thieu will announce the elements of this election. These include international supervision; and an independent body to organize and run the election. representing all political forces in South Vietnam, including the National Liberation Front. Furthermore President Thien has informed me that within the framework of the agreement outlined above, he makes the following offer: He and Vice-President Huong would be ready to resign one month before the new election. The chairman of the Senate, as caretaker head of the government, would assume administrative responsibilities, but the election would be the sole responsibility of the independent election body.

There are several other proposals in our new peace plan. For example, as we offered privately on July 26 of last year, we remain prepared to undertake a major reconstruction program through Indochina, including North Viet-nam, to help all those peoples to recover from the ravages of a generation of war. We will pursue any approach that will speed negotiations.

We are ready to negotiate the plan I have outlined tonight and conclude a comprehensive agreement on all military and political issues. Because some parts of this agreement could prove more difficult to negotiate than others, we would be willing to implement certain military aspects while negotiations continue on the implementation of other issues, just as we suggested in our private proposal in October.

Or, as we proposed privately last May, we remain willing to settle only the military issues and leave the political issues to the Vietnamese alone. Under this approach, we would withdraw all U.S. and allied forces within six months in exchange for an Indochina cease-fire and the release of all prisoners.

The choice is up to the enemy.

This is a settlement offer which is fair to North Vietnam and fair to South Vietnam. It deserves the light of public scrutiny by those nations and by other nations as well. And it deserves the united support of the American people.

The only thing this plan does not do is to join our enemy to overthrow our ally, which the United States of America shall never do. If the enemy wants peace, it will have to recognize the important difference between settlement and surrender.

This has been a long and gonizing struggle. But it is difficult to see how anyone, regardless of his past position on the war, could now say that we have not gone the extra mile in of-fering a settlement that is fair to everybody concerned.

By the steadiness of our withdrawal of troops, America has proven its resolution to end its involvement in the war; by our readiness to act in the spirit of conciliation, America has proven its desire to be involved in the building of a permanent peace throughout Indochina. We are ready to negotiate peace immediately.

If the enemy rejects our offer to negotiate, we shall continue our program of ending American involvement in the war by withdrawing our remaining forces as the South Vietnamese develop the capability of defending them-

If the enemy's answer to our peace offer is to step up their attacks, I shall fully meet my responsibility as commander-inchief of our armed forces to protect our remaining troops. We do not prefer this course of action. We want to end the war not only for America but for all the people of Indochina. The plan I have proposed tonight can accomplish that goal

Proof

Some of our citizens have become accustomed to thinking that whatever our government says must be false, and whatever our enemies say must be true. The record I have revealed tonight proves the contrary. We can now demonstrate publicly what we have long been demonstrating privately—that America has taken the initiative not only end our participation in this war, but to end the war itself. This has been the longest and most difficult war in our history. Honest and patriotic Americans have disagreed as to whether we should have been involved at all nine years ago; and there has been disagreement on the con-duct of the war. The proposal I have made tonight is one on which we can all agree.

Let us unite now in our search for peace-a peace that is fair to both sides—a peace that can last.

The Viet Cong official relterated, "The two basic conditions we demand are: fixing a date for total U.S. military pullout and the with-drawal of all support for the uppet Thieu regime."

Thieu Would Resign

One main feature that President Nixon added to previous U.S. terms for a political settle-ment was that President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Tran Van Huong would be prepared "to resign one month be-fore the new election," to be carried out under international supervision.

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong repeatedly have rejected various U.S. and South Vietnamese formulas for elections, which they charge would allow the existing South Vietnamese government to influence its ontcome, despite all safeguards offered to assure an independent election.

On the more dramatic public issue of exchanging a total U.S. troop withdrawal for the release of U.S. prisoners, President Nixon said be had proposed what his critics have demanded. But his critics immediately challenged that as inaccurate.

As the President posed the is-"Questions have sue, he said: been raised as to why we have not proposed a deadline for the withdrawal of all American forces in exchange for a cease-fire and the return of our prisoners of Mr. Nixon said that this had withdrawal issue, namely, "a genportant departure from the position's critics. A cease-fire, in the form in which the Nixon administration has proposed it, has been publicly spurned by North Vietnam as a condition for "the fixing of a withdrawal date." North Viet-

North Vietnam's Reply

PARIS, Jan. 26.—This is the text of a statment issued in English by the North Vietnam delegation to the Paris talks rejecting President Nizon's proposals on the Indochina war: At the sessions of the Paris conference on Vietnam as well as at private meetings, the delegation of the D.R. V.N. [Democratic Republic of Vietnami government has always made it clear to the U.S. delegates that the government of the D.R.V.N. was sincerely desirous to reach through negotiations a political settlement of the Vietnam problem on the basis of respect for the Vietnamese people's fundamental national At the sessions of the Paris conference and at the private meetings, we put forward many logical and reasonable proposals to put an end to the war in Vietnam, to guarantee the South Vietnam people's right to self-determination, to ensure the respect of the independence, the unity, the sovereignty and the territorial integrity of Vietnam, and to contribute to the restoration of peace throughout Indochina.

At the public sessions and the private meetings, through the intermediary of the chiefs of the U.S. delegation and through the

(2) It persisted in maintaining the group of Nguyen Van Thieu and refused to give up its commitment to the latter. On the contrary, it sought by every means to impose on the South Vietnam people the U.S.-created Saigon puppet regime, its so-called "constitution" and its "laws." While refusing to engage in serious negotiations, the Nixon administration has done its best to carry out and to step up the policy of "Vietnamization" of the war in South Vletnam, expanded the war to the whole of Indochina, and indulged in continuous acts of war against the DRVN.

Mr. Nixon murtures the illusion Mr. Nixon nurtures the illusion of using military force to subdust the Vietnamese people. that Mr. Nixon talked one way and acted another. He spoke of sham peace but made real war. In deciding to unilaterally make public the content of the private meetings that his delegates had proposed and promised to keep secret, Mr. Mixon gave further proof that his administration was very easy to break its en-gagements. Moreover, his Jan. 25, 1972, speech testified to his perficious maneuver to deceive the American electorate in this election year. Mr. Nixon must bear entire responsibility for all the constquences arising from his obdilrate continuation of the war of aggression in Vietnam, Cambo dia, and Laos, from his pursiance of the "Vie namination" of the war, and from his refuse! respond to the correct proposals of the Vietnamese people.

Cambodian Information Minister Long Boret published an extended version this evening of an earlier official statement stres-sing Cambodia's doubts. The first statement had indicated some welcome for Mr. Nixon's plan.

But the later statement noted in more critical terms that the eight-point plan did not specifically demand withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops already in Cambodia and complained that a cesse-fire agreement would be an inadequate guarantee.

It called on the powers which

Sharp fighting erupted in the Mekong Delta yesterday with at least 30 South Victnamese, 31 Viet Cong and one American killed military sources reported

The fighting, heaviest in the deita in several months, was part of a resurgence of local guerrilla forces in several areas of South Vietnam, They are concentrating their attacks on the South Vietnamese militiamen who are now primarily responsible for maintaining security in the country-

Only one militiaman survived a Viet Cong attack on a watch-tower at Ham Luong, 50 miles south of Saigon, and he was wounded. The attackers killed six of the defenders, and the eighth man at the post was missing.

A 30-man South Vietnamese militia platoon lost 13 killed in a fight farther to the south in Vinh Dinh Province, but field reports said 10 of the Communist troops also were killed.

South Vietnamese helicopter gunships killed 21 Viet Cong near Phung Hiep, in Phong Dinh Province. This was the highest Commimist casualty toll reported in a single encounter in the delta in several months, military sources said. A district chief also killed in an ambush.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said that if Mr. Nixon could make political gains by ending the war, then the Democrats would have to accept it in the greater interest of peace, and campaign on other issues.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D., Wash, a presidential candidate who has supported Mr. Nixon on the war, said in Jacksonville, Fla., that he approved of the President's proposals. He called them similar to his own. He said that Mr. Nixon had laid a useful foundation for his trip to China next month and said he hoped that the President would ask Peking to use its good offices to help free prisoners and get a cease-fire.

"The President," Sen. Jackson said, "by revealing the various meetings that have taken place, has made it clear that while all the debate was going on about fixing a date, he was in fact suggesting a fixed date for withdrawal of our forces." Closer Study Asked

He didn't say what I had boped he would, that release of the prisoners would be the sole condition for our withdrawal. I don't think there is any real hope of acceptance."
Rep. John Ashbrook, R., Ohio,

a conservative running against Mr. Nixon in the New Hampshire primary, commended the President for "refusing to bow to pressures of the left at home for unconditional withdrawal." But he expressed concern that Mr. Nixon was going to engage in further "flexible" negotiations with the North Vietnamese, who Mr. Ashbrook said, could not be

Sen John Tower, R., Tex., 8 conservative and a supporter of the President, called the proposals "generous" and said North Vietnam would "be in a difficult position in the eyes of the world" if it rejected them.

This morning, following a breakfast conference with Mr. Nixon at the White House, the Senate Republican leader, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said the peace proposals would allay reasonable doubts about U.S. policy but "of course it would never be an answer to people who demand total surrender." Refusing to name any such persons, Sen. Scott said one or two Democratic contenders fell into

The rector's offer, made earlier today, to lift suspension orders on 4,000 medical students received a mixed reaction, with many students angry that none of their demands for academic reforms have so far been met. But some students at the medi-

One third-year student outside the medical school said today: "We have no intention of returning to classes yet. The rector said we could return if we wanted to-well, we don't want to until our other demands are granted." The Madrid campus was quiet today after last week saw the worst student disturbances in Spain for three years. 50 White MPs In Rhodesia Plan Strategy

SALISBURY, Jan. 26 (Reuters) Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith led ruling Rhodesian Front members of Parliament into a special caucus today to discuss the work of the British commission testing opinion on the pro-posed Anglo-Rhodesian independence settlement. The suddenly called meeting of the 50 white members of the 65-seat House of Assembly was also expected to plan strategy for the front's own submission to the commission, due to be given early next month.

As the members of parliament assembled for the secret meeting. the commission, headed by Lord Pearce, was having a public session with leaders of the multi-racial Center party to hear its views on the settlement proposals. One of the African members warned Britain that the country's 5,250,000 Africans do not trust Mr. Smith and his all-white government. The warning came from Edward Watunga, a vice-president of the Center party, whose leadership gave a qualified "yes" to the proposals during a two-bour hearing with Lord Pearce and his senior commissioners here.

But there were wide-ranging reservations among both the party's European supporters end its bandful of African MPs, though the consensus appeared to be that the proposals must be taken up to avoid the threat of worsening racial tension.

'Fair and Just'

Rep. Hebert called it President Nixon's "finest heur." Some critics of the Vietnam policies of the administration were skeptical about Mr. Nixon's peace proposals, and some complained, oddly eneugh, because he had worked secretly for peace. But the general response, both at heme and abroad, was that the plan put forward jointly by Presidents Nixon and Thieu was equitable, and should serve as a basis, if not for immediate agreement, at least for realistic negotiation.

It would give South Vietnam a chance to decide its own fate by plebiscite, with President Thieu out of office and with the election itself under surveillance by a Vietnamese commission comprising all segments of political activity as well as some kind of international body. This is probably about as close to a democratic solution as that country could achieve after its long war.

For the rest of Indochina, the plan calls for a cease-fire and the withdrawal of all foreign troeps. And American forces would be removed from Vietnam six months after the signing of an agreement-coincidental with the release of prisoners and the elections in the South.

Against the plan there are few arguments that bear upon the right of choice of the Indochinese peoples. Rather, there are the practical facts that North Vietnam, and their allies within Cambodia and Laos, have made military progress within recent weeks, and appear to be preparing for a renewed onslaught on the South, in the wake of the departure of American ground forces, Moreover, there is the ideological fact that Communists do not believe in free elections. They have expressed a willingness to accept something less than an immediate takeover in Saigon, but only provided they are given some kind of friendly "popular front" government by fiat.

Such a conclusion to the war might reflect battlefield realities, but not necessarily political realities. It would, in actuality, not offer a genuine conclusion to the war, any more than the similar arrangement in Lacs offered a viable government and peace to

There are, therefore, sound reasons why statesmanship in Hanoi would dictate some approximation of the Nixon plan, rather than a continuation of a fight which has become a burden to the whole world.

If North Vietnam should refuse, the American dilemma will continue. But its boundaries will have been more sharply defined. Sen. Jehn Sherman Cooper, R., Ky., stated the case with candor. Mr. Nixon's plan, he eald, was "fair and just," and eught to be accepted. But he doubted that it would be, adding: "If not accepted, I still think we should move eut." In ether words, the case for unilateral American extraction from Southeast Asia is like that for Hanoi's continuance of the war throughout Indochina Fairness and justice have nothing to do

President's Peace Proposals

The Vietnam peace proposals which President Nixon made public last night represent a majer advance over the administration's previous public positions on ending the war. They merit support from all shades of American epinion and a positive response from the ether side.

By agreeing to eet a fixed date for the withdrawal of American ferces from Seuth Vietnam in exchange fer the return of prisoners of war, the President has moved dramatically in the direction long advocated by many members of Congress. But like the Viet Cong, Mr. Nixon has linked withdrawal to conditions for a political settlement that the ether side may find difficult to accept.

Even in its political components, however, the President's peace plan effers marked advances ever earlier positions—notably the resignation of President Thieu and Vice-President Huong one month before new internationally supervised presidential elections and the establishment of an independent body representing all political ferces in South Vietnam to organize and run the electien. These are significant concessions by the President.

This is not a foolproof peace plan. But at first leok, the President's new proposals de appear to offer a basis for serious negotiatione in Paris. The Vietnamese Communists owe the world and their long-suffering people a forthright response.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

International Opinion

The U.S. Peace Plan

The increasing flexibility of the Americans—at least on paper or on television—is met by growing rigidity from North Vietnam. However, on both sides, a common attitude is growing out of the verbal antagonism: emassment. It is not the first time that Hanei need only take literally an American plan in order to obtain considerable satisfaction which would be to the general relief of the peoples and chancelleries of the world. Bet each time that Washington comes cleser, the North Vietnamese move farther away, or. after a dialogue is begun, retreat again into silence.

Are they waiting for the White House simply to "sell eut" the South without further ceremony? Perhaps such ideas occasionally tempt American leaders. But there are limits to everything, and these limits often are more confining for a great power than for a small nation, ne matter how valoreus it might be.

-From Le Monde (Paris). Cairo Sit-Ins and Israel

The one thing that the sit-ins and demonstrations have made incemparably harder-impossible, probably-is a resumption of negotiations toward any ferm ef settlement with Israel. The burden of complaint against President Sadat, which is commen te many in Egypt besidee the stedents, is that in 1971 he made neither peace ner war. He cannot now resume the subtle and protracted diplomatic struggle he has been engaged in without success since he came to power. This is a tragedy. -- From the Times (Londen).

European Security

Mr. Brezhnev could have some difficulty in arriving at the coordination he likes the Warsaw Pact to show the world. He has managed to bring the East Germans into line, and there have been new understandings on Berlin and between the two Germanys. He has breught Czechoslovakia into line: The fact that the meeting is in Prague suggests the normalization demanded in 1968 has been effectively completed.

Bulgaria has a built-in pliability that gives him ne trouble. But Hungary and Poland, to name but two, favor a more sensible attitude than the Russlans have hitherto adopted toward the Common Market. And Romania, which has friends in China and the United States, will undeubtedly haggle to maintain its precious independence in foreign policy. For such reasons Moscow may now think it expedient to come to terms with what the West, and some Warsaw Pact members, would like to see on the agenda ef an all-European conference.

-From the Financial Times (London).

Curious Prosperity

Nixon announces prosperity with a $40billion deficit a new prosperity without the stimulus of the war and without the drain of inflation. The most curious thing is that the U.S. President will probably be right. By virtne ef dollar incenvertibility, the Americans enjoy the privilege of being able to live in deficit without necessarily having inflation result from it in the United States. They merely have to export dollars and Mr. Nixon can de so as long as foreign central banks continue to accept them without

Soviet-Japanese Thaw

In the great reshuffle ef diplomatic relationships sparked eff by President Nixon's visit te China, a reconciliation between Japan and the Soviet Union always looked probable. With the anneuncement that the two countries are to play hest to each other's premiers in the near future, a probability has become a certainty.

Japan was dealt two heavy blows by the United States last year. It was not consulted ever the American President's visit to China or over the imposition of the 10 percent import surcharge. Although relations have improved markedly since then with the new currency and trade realignments in the Group of 10, the Soviet Union would have been clumsy not to try to exploit the situation. Since the Chinese have started to express long-term fears about Japan, it was also to be expected that the Seviet Union would want to make friends with Peking'e enemy.

MOSCOW.—The unseemly odor of a political police crackdown is in the frosty Mascow air this January. A series of arrests, harassments and articles in the efficial press have provided a steady stream of "crackdown" stories for the Western news organizations here—the single most attentive audience to the confusing spectacle of political dissent in the Soviet Union.

Abrupt changes in the political temperature recur periodically here. Old hands can remember dozens of them. For newer observers the process is bewildering and fascinating. Bewildering because it is so hard to know what such a crackdown really means. Fascinating because it revives one of the basic ques-tions about this society: How does it change, and why?

By actual count, the current crackdown has directly touched less than 35 people (assuming its full dimensions are known, which is problematical). Nineteen of these were arrested in the Ukrains on charges of nationalist agitation, perhaps in connection with the arrest of a Belgian tourist in the Ukraine at the same time

Mostly From Moscow

The others affected by the crackdown are mostly Moscow dissidents, friends of Pyotr Yakir, the 43-year-old son of a Soviet general killed in a Stalin purge, and now Moscow's most active political renegade. Yakir's colleague Vladimir Buk-ovsky was sentenced to seven years in prison and five more in exile, a harsh punishment which was the first sign of the new crackdown. The apartments of Yakir and seven friends were ecarched. The Moscow correspondent of The London Times and his wife were jostled and detained by police after visiting Yakir in his flat.

Two other Soviet intellectuals identified with political noncon-formity were attacked in the Soviet press, Alexander I. Soishenitsyn, the writer, and Valery N. Chalidze, a physicist and an organizer of the unofficial Committee for Human Pights. Both attacks were unusual. Solzhenttsyn has been ignored by the Soviet press for most ef a year, and Chalidze had hitherto been immune from public criticism.

All these events coincide with an increased number of supplications to the party faithful to maintain their vigilance against subversive foreign ideas. For example, an important party ideologist, V. Bolshakov, wrote re-cently in Pravda that "the actions the counter-revolutionary forces in Czechoslovakia in 1968... were an attempt to carry out a new tactic in the struggle imperialism against ecclaiism... a tectic known as the 'hridge-building' policy." West-ern bridge-builders, Bolshakov added, "hope it will be possible to export counter-revolution to-gether with industrial commodi-

The crackdown plus the vigilance campaign has given rise to theory, popular in several of the biggest Western chancelleries in Moscow, that the Soviet leaders are reminding their people that talk of detente in foreign policy does not mean any loosening of controls at bome. It is a plausible but untestable theory. One Westerner with many years experience says it is wrong to look for such an elaborate explanation. "Even in the freest days under Khrushchev, such things occasionally happened, just to remind people that the KGB was still in business," he

Different Signal

In the recent crackdown, only the published attacks on Solzhenitsyn and Chalidze could have had a wide impact of this kind. Curiously, a very different signal has probably made a much greater impression on Moscow in-tellectuals this month—a signal from a brilliant movie called "Andrei Rubley."

This film, made six years ago by Andrei Tarkovsky, was shown with great success in Paris, but was banned here until last month. It is a dark and gloomy chronicle of the life of Rubley, an icon painter of the 15th century. In a style reminiscent of Ingmar Bergman at his best, Tarkovsky draws a vivid and woefully depressing picture of successful sit-ins in official ofmedieval Russia, its cruel princes and wild Tartar invaders.

laughed at. None of this is liberalism. From ed to Yugoslavia, a hint that it ting itself off from the outside still troubles them. There is much world. Intourist, the state tourist organization, is working hard to reverse a decline in the number of tourists here in 1971, a decline attributed to Western reaction against Soviet treatment of Jews and perhaps dissidents. The Soviet government is courting other countries ardently, and shows every indication of a keen

The tolerance of Solzhenitsyn and the decision to permit substantial Jewish emigration seem to be evidence that the Kremlin now responds to foreign opinion in a way Stalin would have a liberal point of view it may not even be hopeful. Soviet intellectuals may be willing to live within the current boundaries, permitted an occasional "Andrei Rublev" and their private frustrations, but nothing more. Each year, no deubt, a few will be unwilling, will join the active dissidents, and will probably end up in jail. There isn't even a hint that the great mass of citizens cares about censorship, foreign travel or civil rights.

Brezhnev and his colleagues may have achieved a new status quo-shead of Stalin's, well behind Khrushchev's at his most liberal, and by all appearances stable. Perhaps its susceptibility to foreign pressure is a weakness that will lead to change, but that is only speculation. The Soviet invasion ef Czechoslovakia seems to confirm that no amount of foreign disapproval will dissuade the men in the Kremlin when they are really afraid.

An Effective Move

Peace Bid and Politics

By James Reston

WASHINGTON-It has almost become a cliché that President Nixon always deals effectively with the politics of his problems better than he deals with the problems themselves. And this is what he appears to have done again in announcing his secret peace negotiations with Politically, it is an effective move. It is clearly awkward for his political opponents who have been urging him to effer to set a date certain for total U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam, and intermetionally supported elections in that country with some neutral government in power in Saigon. This clearly puts Muskie, Humphrey, McGovern and Lindsay in the position of attacking the President for refusing to offer what the President now discloses he has offered long ago—only to have his offers rejected and misrepresented by Hanoi.

A Fair Offer

On the face of it and in terms ef American democratic procedure, this represents new and even dramatic concessions by the President, and a fair offer te end the war—as Nixon suggested, everything short of "surrender." This clearly helps deal with the presidential politics of the President's Vietnam problem. Like the sudden Kissinger mission to Peking last July, and the stidden acceptance of unprecedented peacetime budget deficits, and wage and price controls, and the devaluation of the dollar, the latest dramatic announcement has temporarily etunned the Damocratic opposition, dominated the news, and thus changed the politics of the issue. However, the issue itself—in this case ending the war—is a different and separato question. The problem is not to confuse the Democrats-who are doing a pretty good job of that on their own-but to persuade the North Vietnamese that the United States really wants to get out en honorable terms, but will not be de-ceived or humiliated while it

Nixon's report of his secret negotiations is impressive evidence or so it eeems that he was really reaching for a compromise, trying to get oot, even offering total withdrawal by a certain date. But even if the President managed to persuade all his critics and political epponents at home of his good faith en this point, he would still not have dealt with the practical problem on the battlefield and in Hanoi and with the leaders of the National Liberation Front, where peace obviously has to be made, coming Tet effensive begins,

The hard facts are that: (1) The United States is getting its troops out fast and now has reduced them to such an extent that they are not an effective fighting force on the ground: (2) The enemy has recaptured the Plaine des Jacres in Lace and is guining steadily on the capital of Cambodia; and (3) The enemy is now mounting what seems to be another major Tet offensive in the Central Highlands of South Victuam, despite the recent massive bombing by the US. Air Force. This could easily be another tragic moment in the Vietnam war. While Nixon may be trying te deal with the presidential politics of the Vietnam problem he is also trying to get out, and the enemy may very well be underestimating his efforts to end the fighting once and for all, and the consequences of more savage war if Hanol rejects and rebukes him. Still, it would be feelish to ignore how different Nixon's offer looks to the enemy then it looks here at home.

On two or three different occasions in this long 30-year war, Hanoi has been en the point of military victory and has egreed to negotiations at the end only. as it believes, to be deceived and finally defeated in the process of negotiations. Now it is at that point again.

Offensives Failing

Just at the moment when Nixon is making a campaign issue of getting all his troops out of Vistnam, and the U.S. effensives in Laos and Cambodia are failing, Hanol and the NLF seem to be regaining the military initiative, while Rixon calls for a ceasefire, and the withdrawal of all forces—the enemy's as well as the ellied ferces-and asks the enemy to rely on elections which they don't even understand. This obviously is not likely to appear to be a reasonable proposition to

Obviously, this is not going to be accepted by Hanol, though the guess here is that the enemy would win if he accepted Nixon's proposition. In fact, Nixon knew his peace terms had been rejected before he decided to make the negotiations public.

In the process, he really dealt effectively with the politics of the negotiations at home, but he did not deal with the problem of peace itself. In fact, he may have made it worse and committed himself to more fighting and more bombing when the furth-

No Pussyfooting

In response to the letter "Quick to Praise" (IET, Jan. 18) condemning Tom Wicker for an ar-ticle concerning the "Anderson Papers," I would like to make a few points.

If it is "intellectual arrogance" that caused Mr. Wicker to disagree with the administration's Indo-Pakistani policy, then we need more of such arrogance. Nixon and Kissinger's anti-Bangladesh attitude in favor of their murderers should be abhorrent to every American. No excuses about future pussyfooting with China or any other drivel can be accepted.

This "tilt toward Pakistan" is not surprising from an ad-ministration that continues its own murders in Southeast Asia. but it should be surprising from one that flies around the world spouting something about "a generation of peace." DAVID P. SCHULZ.

theory. Nevertheless, amiability along the Washington-Montgomery axis is at a peak. Whatever its source, the new Wallace strategy draws enly smiles from the White House. Obviously, Wallace disrupts the Democratic primaries. His new campaign theme, not overtly racist and more strongly populist than ever, may not only carry Florida but score better in Northern states than most Democratic politicians believe. With most Democratic candidates tilting leftward, Wallace's populist appeal to the blue-collar worker could be formidable.

Less obvious but more important is what Wallace's absence does to the general election. Running contrary to the conventional wisdom that Wallace hurts the Democrats in the North are private polls newly taken by the Oliver Quayle organization. In four key Northern states, they show Wallace voters would divide exactly evenly between Mr. Nixon and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie as Democratic nominee.

Moreover, Wallace made clear long ago that any third-party activity in 1972 would be concentrated in the South, where it would hurt Mr. Nixon most Conversely, a two-man race in Dixie without Wallace would kill lingering Democratic hopes in Texas and probably deliver the entire Old Confederacy to the President. He then would begin the 1972 election with all 130 Southern electoral votes, or 70 more than he got in 1968. With 270 needed to win, that would cripple Democratic chances.

Waliacee year-around campaign staff is now preoccupied with the Democratic primaries. Revealing the unlikelihood of another third-party run is Wallace'e loss of interest in American Independent party state organizations. For example, rightwing extremists kept from control of the California party in 1968 now have taken over without objection from Montgomery.

Wallace's avowed reason for abandoning his third party is his desire to deflect the leftward plunge of the Democratic party. Moreover, he plans to claim credit for what be expects to be President Nixon's growing epposition to school busing. That is remi-niscent of 1964, when Wallace rejected a third-party bid because (he said) ef Sen. Barry Goldwater's nomination by the Republicans. Indisputably, White House hos-tility toward Wallace has disappeared-a change dated by Alsbama politicians from Mr. Nixon's chat with the governor in Mobile last May 25. On Nov. 9, Jerris Leonard, head ef the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Adminis-tration (LEAA), said Alabama's much-criticized LEAA program "is a much better plan than many states." Leonard is close, it is noted here, to the Nixon administration's strongman, Attorney General John Mitchell

Doubt Erased

If any doubt remained, it was erased Jan. 2 when Mr. Nixon passed up a chance during his elevision interview to discuss whether Wallace 'stands for a threat to holding this society to-gether." That, he said, was a Democratic problem.

And adherents of a conspiracy theory paid close attention to a U.S. grand jury investigation of Wallace campaign finances begun last April 12. A look into charges against Wallace's brother, Gerald, was discontinued Aug. 12.

Such backroom deals often ticians than in reality. Ne matter what its cause, however, a Nixon-Wallace détente, first predicted in our column last May, is grin news for Democrats. While the party's leaders now accuse Wal-lace of entering Democratic pri-maries to publicize his third-party campaign, they had better worry whether there will be no thirdparty campaign at all.

Japan's Jungle Sergeant to Get Back Pay of $160 After 27 Years

TOKYO, Jan. 26 (AP).—A Japanese soldier, who hid in the jungles of Guam for 27 years after World War II, is en-titled to 43,131 yen ($160) in back pay and other allowances, the Ministry of Health and Welfare reported today.

Shoichi Yokoi, 56, was found by two villagers Monday when he was catching crabs in a river near his jungle hideout. Officials said he was in good health and would probably return to Japan in a week The ministry said Mr. Yokol's back pay and other benefits were computed on a salary of nine yen a month which he received in 1944 when he was a corporal. One yen at that time was worth 25 cents. It now is worth 0.3 cents.

The ministry said Mr. Yokol was officially declared dead in October, 1944. He was posthumously promoted to the rank of sergeant and his salary payments were terminated.

Officials said they now are considering possibilities of giving him some money as "compensation" for the years he spent in the jungle. The ministry said Mr. Yokol also would be entitled to a 10,008 yen ($32.40) monthly pension as a military veteran.

Offices to rent.

1. - To rent not to buy.

You cannot expand by freezing your capital. Buying offices is very bad for your cash flow situation. Keep your available funds for productive investments: All of the 50.000 m² of offices that we are building are to rent.

2. - To rent, 330 F the m², per year.

These are not naked walls : they are well equipped square meters. The minimum space rented is 300 m2. These are functional areas, well lighted where you would not lose any space.

3. - To rent equipped to your own taste.

You can place partitions where you like, indicate the location of telephone and electric junctions, choose the colour of your carpeting, the kind of dividing partitions you desire (all the way, or half-way opaque or transparent, single or double or even storing-partitions).

4. - To rent insulated.

This is what we call "all equipped"

The front wall is made of concrete and the windows are munting windows. Window-panes? Double. Carpeting? Wall to Wall.

The ceiling is lined with fibre glass and the passageways have "lamellated" anti-noise ceilings.

5. - To rent air-conditioned.

We have installed central air-conditioning which is therefore very silent. There is an air-conditioning vent under each window every 1.26 m.

6. - To rent with no parking problems.

You will be able to rent the parkings you need under your offices where underground parkings are added to the 2,500 ground parkings or in silo.

7. - To rent with "everything within 10 minutes".

Silic does not restrict its services to providing you with telephone and telex plugs and to laying out your offices: we have reserved areas for conference-rooms movies, for exhibition halls.

Right there you will find: restaurant, bank, commercial gallery, tennis and sports grounds. .Next to : Orly Airport, 2 high-class hotels equipped with conference rooms. The largest Commercial Center in Europe : Belle-Epine. Nearby: 46 restaurants between "Les Halles" and Orly. Do you really have all this within 10 minutes of your current offices?

8. - To rent "while keeping your staff".

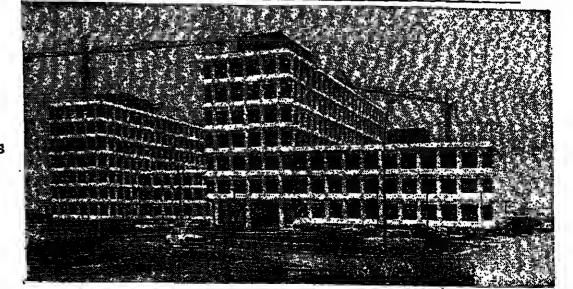

These offices are in the middle of an important transportation junction: A6 highway, Main Roads (Nationales 7 and 186) railways from Orsay and Austerlitz (a bus connects Pont de Rungis Railway Station to the Silic Center) other lines connect Paris to the Southern suburbs.

Which means: Paris, Versailles, Créteil, the new town of Evry within 20 mm. London, Frankfurt, Brussels, Milan within I hour.

Nothing astonishing: our offices are located in Rungis. You can see them from the highway on your right just before arriving at Orly Airport.

And to enlarge: you will find right there all the necessary space: our programmes to come will allow it.

FASHION.

The Best From Givenchy

By Eugenia Sheppard

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Givenchy has the best collection in Paris. It is what made-to-order fashion is all about, like it or not. Givenchy's fabrics are by far the most fascinating that any designer has come up with and the workmanship is something unique in these days. It's wonder-ful to know that this kind of meticulous perfection still exists somewhere

The clothes aren't designed to sway the whole fashion industry, but to please the men who pay the bills for the women who will look just the way they ought to Givenchy knows the private lives of his customers and he goes straight to the point when he designs his collections.

He provides them with plenty of play clothes and plenty of party clothes, and doesn't waste time on the old-time categories in between Women are more interested in buying clothes than classifications.

At least half the collection is evening clothes, ankle-length or down to the floor. There's no trend. Each dress is completely individual. There are the gingham checks, red or green, on paper-thin taffets or chiffon; the black gauze with the wide straps and the cut-outs on each side; the swirly organza prints; the dresses that are alightly fitted in front and fall straight behind and the ruffled organdles. Ruffles may be all over Paris, but remember it was Givenchy who started all the ruffling.

Givenchy's sports clothes are navy blue and white and very ship shoy. The white slacks sometimes have navy cuffs to go with the short or long jackets. Givenchy keeps the saflor collar all through the collection. He uses it on coats, dresses and even on evening clothes. There are almost no suits, but many dresses with their own coats, the ultimate houry, like the striped blue and white linen over the blue linen dress, the fantastic beige and white wool plaid over a short white wool dress, and the big polkn-dotted shantung coats over plain black. Givenchy likes black even for

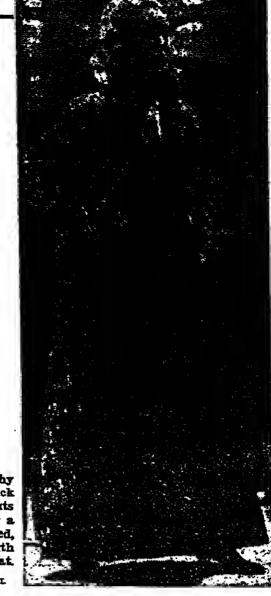

It ought to be one of Givenchy's best-selling collections. In case I make Givenchy sound like Jesus Christ Superstar, there are some people who will say the whole collection is square.

Uneard

Every designer has to stub his toe on bringing back the '40s, and it was Ungaro's turn this morn-

The man who invented mixed prints and put the floppy, droopy look into high fashion has widened shoulders, widened lapels, cinched walsts, discovered bosoms and ruffled everything in sight. Most of his models are wearing fluify hair, bound in Lana Turner

"I'm not reviving the '40s. I

From Givenchy black with cut-outs worn under a printed, floor-length coat

just wanted my look to be a little more feminine," said Ungaro after the show. How can you tell a good designer, who is looking at you with Labrador eyes, that you can't make a girl more feminine by putting a flower in her hand frills and ruffles on her skirt? The look he is famous for already couldn't be more feminine in its own contemporary way. On the positive side Ungaro has designed some good-looking coats the big. white trench coat with the ragian sleeves and all the others with the deep, inverted pleat that runs from the back of the neck to the hem.

Ungaro's pants are wide and soft with pleats below the waistline and stripes of color down the outside of each leg. They are worn with short, snug jackets with wide revers that almost reach the shrugged shoulders. Underneath are chic little crocheted, tank-top sweaters in stripes of color or crocheted in bouquet patterns. The best re-vival is the halter top made of a silk foulard scarf that ties at the neck and waist and leaves the whole back bare. Bra straps used to cause trouble, but that problem no longer exists.

There are some good print dresses, but most of the evening clothes, the shiny satin jackets, the sequins and the black lace ruffles look as if they were de-signed for Ringling Brothers. Circus instead of the Paris cou-

"The Cowbeys," brings John Wayne back to the screen as old Wil Anderson whose sons have died after having gone mysteriously "wrong." The film, directed by Mark Rydell, involves a cattle drive through what Wayne de-suribes as "400 miles of the meanest country of the West." Wayne's ranch hands have deserted him to rush off on a gold hunt, so he takes on a dozen school boys to help him on the drive. "You immediately know that a numbingly contemporary, adult sensi-bility is at work," reports Canby, "when one of the boys turns out to be Jewish, another to be the half-casts son of a Mexican whore and when Roscoe Lee Browne, whose diction is only slightly less melifluous than Sir almost perfect father figure with-out whom 'The Cowboys' would be even more ludicrous than it actually is." The screenplay by Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank jr. and William Dale Jennings is based on a novel by Mr. Jennings. "The Vampire Doll," directed by Michlo Yamamoto, is "a tight, toothsome thriller that makes a little go a long way." Howard Thompson writes. "Somebody has had a good look at Hitchcock's "Psycho,"... Secondly, while the director also has the master's Finally, Greenspun says, the picture is "exceptionally well-written," with a denouement that is "fascingting and well, almost credible." The cast is small—Yukiko Kobayashi and Yoko Minakazeand the acting, "on a par with the rest."

"5ad Song of Yellow Skin." written, directed and narrated by Michael Rubbo, is an hour-long documentary about daily life in Saigon. "Rubbo makes no claims for inclusive objectivity," and there is "no pretense that those few aspects he investigates are deeply representative..." Roger Greenspun reports. But "I thick that achievements of this nature -- compounded of circumstance, compassion, awe and intelligence—come very properly to the kind of reticent, exceptionally canny journalism that "Sad Song of Yellow Dog exemplifies."

The Watercress Was Fresh -And So Was the Price

PARIS (IRT).—The watercrees in the window was fresh and I crisp-looking. The price tag said 35 centimes, but when the shopkeeper listed it on a slip with my other purchases he put down 95 centimes. When I pointed out this discrepancy he smiled and said. "Eightly-fire centimes was perferday's price, M'sieu. Today's price is 95 centimes; unfortunately I forgot to change the tag. Even in America, I believe, market prices go up and down do

In France they don't often go down, but presumably they will be going up with less frequency (and more plausibility) starting Feb. 1. That's when the new law, requiring all goods on sale to have a clearly visible price tag, is schaduled to go into effect. Students of economics, and of the French national character, can

The prices on items in shop windows, moreover, must be clearly visible from the street. Anyone who has ever contorted his next trying to read an inward-facing tag in a bakery window should appreciate that

How are the shopkeepers likely to take this new government thrust in the long campaign aimed at protecting the consumer? The wise-money betting, based on form, is that the shopkeepers (like the man who sold me the watercress) will think of something.

Small Potatoes

The greengrocer's problem is, of course, small potatoes compared to the one facing, say, a jeweler on the Rue Royale. Years of experience have enabled him to spot at a giance an affluent American who means business. But how can be double the price that is clearly marked on a ring or bracelet? Weep for him, ye who have tears for Rue Royale jewelers.

There is, to be sure, more than one way to skin a cat (or s tourist). What would prevent a shopkeeper from laying in a big supply of price tags—a set for each item on display, graded upward and switching them discreetly when an opportunity arose. It would take an army of policemen to provide the necessary surveillance. (France has an army of policemen, in fact several, but they are apparently occupied with other duties.)

Old India hands will tell you at the drop of a chota-peg of the three-tier price system that prevailed under the Raj. Every bassar stall every shop, had one price for Americans, a somewhat lower price for the British, and another, still lower, for their own countrymen. If you wanted to beat the system in buying a mattress of a hookah, you sent your Indian servant to the bazaar.

Something like that, though less systemized, has operated in France. Foreigners generally are regarded as fair gams, Americans as the fairest of all.

Applied to Services

The new price law will apply to services as well as to merchandise. The garage man will no longer have to examine your shoes and button-down collar before he can tell you what a greate job is going to cost. The window washer will be spared the trouble of explaining why he charges you 25 francs and your French neighbor, in an identical apartment with identical windows, 15 francs. For people in such trades as plumbing and electrical repairs, asked what this or that repair job will cost, the sinister phrase "not much" will no longer suffice. Barbers and hairdressers already have price lists in their windows, but the new law says that these prices must now be tout compris—with all surcharges indicated.

What about those chie little restaurants that don't even display a menu, let alone prices—where the patron advises you—in some cases orders you, what to eat? There is no reason to essume that they

The general effect of the new law, it would seem, will be to drive prices up. But, once posted, they will stay there—at least as long as the customer is watching.

"Straw Dogs," Sam Peckinpah's first non-Western film, which stars Dustin Hoffman, is "a major disappointment" to Vincent Canby. The critic has no quarrel with the director's point that there are times when "a man must take a position and maintain it. But the manner in which Dustin Hoffman, on the reminds me of someone protecting his Jaguar with a flintlock." Hoffman is a "loving, mild-man-pered mathematician" defending his home against thugs. Canby found it "very difficult to accept the quality of the hostility that-greets the American mathematician and his English wife (Susan George) in the tiny Cornish com-munity." The film ends in a violent scene which, although it serves a dramatic function, is, Canby says, confused and unsupported by prior developments in the screenplay. The critic finds "Straw Dogs" doubly disappointing because Peckinpah has not only made good films but a "couple of great films (The Wild Bunch, The Ballad of Cable Hogue')." "Something Big," directed by Andrew W. Mclagien and starring Dean Martin, "Is one of those pop period Westerns that's difficult to dislike even though it's not really very good," says Vincent Camby. "Martin is a sort of failed outlaw looking for 'something hig' so he can go back to Pittsburgh and marry a girl he left behind. The screenplay is by James Lee Barrett.

Bonn Ready To Unfreeze 10 Billion DM

By David Binder BONN, Jan. 26 (NYT).-Karl Schiller, the Minister of Economics and Finance, announced today that the federal government was preparing to unfreeze more than 10 billion deutsche marks it had set aside beginning two years ago to combat inflationary trends

After a cabinet meeting he said the government would pay back 5.9 billion marks it had taken in from taxpayers in the furm of a surcharge, probably in the coming summer. They can do what they want with the money," he said.

Mr. Schiller added that "cor-responding to today's state of knowledge," the state and federal governments would also be able to start using the frozen funds of their "eventual budgets" amounting to 4.1 billion marks, possibly this spring. At a news conference, Mr. Schiller spoke of limited optimism" for German business in the coming 12 months, and predicted a growth of the gross na-tional product of 2 to 8 percent for 1972. He said he expected prices to rise about 4.5 percent which was "still not satisfactory" but better than might have been expected a few months back, and well under the 5.2 percent price rise of 1971.

He said the latest data on the secondary had caused "a shift among the pessimists" in recent weeks, although he admitted that there were still "risks for employment and growth" at this stage. Mr. Schiller has been the high briest of 's'tability" here ever since he became economics minister in 1966. He made it clear again today that the release of the frozen funds was his chosen instrument for preventing the economy from going into a real slower.

its annual survey of the United Kingdom, said that with Common Market membership now virtually secured businessmen need to become more dynamic and imaginative.

Marketing, delivery and after-sales-services efforts made by U.K. exporters need some improvement, if the potential provement. If the potential benefits of expanded markets provided by EEC membership are to be realized," the report stat-ed. "Improving the environment in which exporters operate must not be considered a substitute for necessary increases in managerial energy and imagination." There are also other problems which threaten the expansion: Continued economic under-achievement; a high rate of inflation and "an important margin of economic slack"—that is, the "unacceptably high" level of unemployment, the "low or moderate" growth of inventories and the "little change" in business invesment

These are all part of the "vicious circle" of stop-go policies which have hampered the postwar U.K. economy. Concern about the balance of pay-ments and inflation have led successive governments to brake economic growth just as it seem-ed to be taking off.

Thus, business investment has remained low—as have the re-turns on such investments—and the nation's productive capacity has suffered.

If the government."is to take advantage of the present situation to achieve smoother and faster growth over the medium term, much will depend upon attitudes adapting to a more rapid pace of change in both general management techniques and investment practices," the report

The policy cons for starting the process would fall first on demand management which, by taking up existing slack could now provide a period of continued, more rapid growth of sufficent length to produce a more dynamic response from businessmen." The report noted that "measures intended to reduce the margin of slack have already been taken but "some additional stimulus" may be needed. The momentum of the present expansion is expected to weaken throughout the year "and the annual rate of growth may decline to shout 25 percent in the second half from the 5 percent rate estimated at the end of last year. In addition, the nation's "strong export performance" last year "is not likely to be repeated" this year. The main source of strength is consumer spending. In addition, the balance of payments "should continue in substantial amplus" and the price/wage spiral, "although still steep, has ceased to accelerate and there are indications of deceleration."

U.S. Expert Attacks Flexible Rates

By Andrew Leigh

DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 28. (IHT).-A scathing attack on fierible exchange rates, and a prediction that the world is switching from a dollar system to a European currency system, was made today by Charles Kindle-berger, professor of economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Speaking at the second European management sym-posium, he advocated a fixed exchange rate system with combined monetary policies.

He added that "this is difficult politically, God knows. I don't think we're going to get there for a while but I would assert that market forces are leading in that

Prof. Kindleberger was addressing an audience of around Europe. He admitted that his message was a gloomy one. "In the long run," he said, "what we need as the world gets smaller policies run by a world central

Common Market signed only last Salurday, the symposium has ac-quired the faint, self-satisfied air of being "on the ball." Appro-priately titled "developing a European corporate strategy," in more prossic terms it is about survival tactics in an age of transnational companies and ever bigger trading blocs.

Despite this, there are few signs that the top managers from some 35 countries, who have paid around $1,500 each to attend the symposium, are learning anything dramatically new.

On Sunday, they heard Altiero Spinelli, member of the Common Market commission, explain that while European business has evolved a new cross-frontier trade strategy, there is still no sign of a comparable investment strategy.

The most interesting point he made was the revelation that the EEC is moving into the "com-pany marriage" business. He stated that an inquiry is about to begin on finding potential partners for mergers among medium-scale companies across frontiers. The European Invest-ment Bank is expected to play a significant role in this venture.

Talks with many of the managers here suggest that the conference is receiving a mixed re-ception. Some, like the Swedish executive from a paper-making company, feel that the emphasis on planning for the future is the main benefit.

Quite a few delegates, though, are justifiably appalled at the amount of paper work which the conference is generating. The number of questionnaires and briefing sheets which everyone, including the press, receives al-most hourly, threatens to submerge the talks in an avalanche of pink, blue and white forms,

PARIS, Jan. 26 (IHT) .- American shareholders are quitting the stock market, they are selling out at the rate of $8 billion a year-a phenomenon which is thhibiting the nation's economic growth and must be arrested, a leading money manager warned here today.

Howard Stein, chairman of the board of Dreyfus Corp., which manages U.S. and offshore mn-tual funds worth more than $3 billion, said that "the individual must be brought back to the

Big Board Prices Drop In New Profit-Taking By Vartanig G. Vartan

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (NYT).—New York Stock Exchange prices sagged today under further profit-taking and, to a lesser degree, the negative tone of North Vietnam's initial response to pence proposals disclosed last night by President Nixon.

Falling for the sixth session in a row, the Dow Jones industrial average slumped 5.57 to finish at 889.15. The blue-chip Dow has retreated steadily from its post-Thanksgiving high at 917.22 reached at the close of trading on Tuesday of last week. But analysts generally took heart at the slackening pace of trading on the decline Today's turnover of 14.94 million shares, for example, marked the lowest volume since the first trading day of 1972. In that session on Jan. 3, a total of 12.57 million shares changed bands. Although the response by North Vietnam admittedly was a dis-appointment to some observers, the main pressure on stock prices stemmed from profit-taking, com-bined with the sluggish domestic economic recovery and forecasts of huge budget deficits.

Getty Oil, the second mostactive issue, was a big loser. It dropped 9 to 74 1/8 after losing 8 1/8 yesterday. Although Getty has reported higher earnings for 1971, its forecast calls for lower profits this year in the face of increased exploration outlays and other costs. Two other big losers on the active roster plunged 4 1/8 points each. Halliburton, which closed at 69 5/8, was hit by profit-taking after its strong price performance during recent months Horizon Corp., finishing at 47 3/4, was affected by a critical broker-age-house appraisal of land-development companies as reported in the Wall Street Journal. Also affected adversely, in less active trading, were two other land-development stocks. General Development fell 1 3/8 to 26 1/4, while GAC Corp, slipped 1/2 to 11, 1/2, Owens-Ulinois, weak in recent sessions, led the active list. 1t dropped 2 1/4 to 43 3/4, reflecting the pressure of a large block transaction. The stock is recommended for purchase in this week's Outlook issued by Stan-dard & Poor's, which predicts record earnings for 1972 reaching "perhaps $4.50 a share." On the American Exchange, stocks ended the session mixed.

The exchange index ended the session at 26.59, up .03. Declining issues led advances 469 to 429. Volume fell to 4.51 million shares from 4,87 million yesterday.

We're celebrating the new year with a new office

Today we've opened a new branch office in Frankfurt.

An exciting occasion for us.

Because it marks the extension of Security Pacific Bank's international network into one of the most buoyant economies in Europe.

As a California-based bank, we're in a good position to understand West Germany's steady rate of economic expansion.

We've had over a hundred years experience in one of the fastest-growing economies in the world.

And, since growth is so fundamental to our whole business, we're continually developing and expanding ourselves.

Over the last three years our assets have risen by three billion dollars, to pass the nine billion dollar mark. We're one of America's ten largest We're one of America's ten largest banks: financial advisers to 90 of her top 100 corporations. And each year our financial network stretches further across the world.

So that we can offer our clients and correspondent banks an even wider multinational service.

And extend to even more companies the benefit of our years of experience in California's dynamic economy.

In Frankfurt you'll find us at 6 Frankfurt am Main, Bockenheimer, Landstrasse 51-53 (Manager Kynt Döll)

Landstrasse 51-53 (Manager Kurt Düll).

And we also have offices in all the other major financial centres of Europe, as well as in South America, Australia, and the Far East.

In fact our Frankfurt branch is the seventh new international office we've opened since the beginning of last year. A bright start to 1972.

And augury of other good years to come.

On the diagramed deal from a match between two Precision teams, a misjudged double was heavily punished. At both tables, North opened one club, showing at least 16 points, and East preempted four clubs. North reopened with a double and South's four hearts became the contract.

In 'one case West doubled, relying on the singleton in his partner's suit and his defensive values in spades and diamonds. South underscored his mistake by making an overbrick

After a club lead, South naturally did not finesse: He took the club ace, cashed the spade ace and led a low spade. West won and shifted to a trump. This helped South on his way, but the final result would not have been

THE air war in Southeast Asia in fall, where she will somehow must be the great metaphor for depersonalized evil of our age, for it most utterly removes the killer from the humans he is killing, from the mano a mano of combat, from control over what he wrecks, hence from the humaness of his killing. It de-humanizes the killers. These instruments, the pilots who fly the F-105s, were victims of their

of passion; Davis has eliminated his own voice, his own narrative line. The narration shifts from character to character as the author lays down the enisodes that draw their desultory fates together. Thus each character speaks from his or her own psychic prison within the greater dome of complicity. Davis pre-sumes nothing of his people, in-vests them with no pathos, allows them no sentimental loopholes at all. He has written a novel about three men who try to break free.

They are pilots who room together in Thailand. Stacy is white, Ben and Childress are black. Ben is a Harvard gradu-ate and Childress is a Texan Who quit college to join the Air high-school dumpling from Rochester, N.Y., he is saving his manhood for Roxanne, his childhood sweetheart, shout whom Ben to inherit, although Ben is waiting for him to leave so that he will have a girl who speaks English, Stacy asks Childress why he doesn't want Ben to inherit his whose. "I don't know," Child-ress replies, and goes on to tell Stacy that he will plant Communist papers on the girl, which the authorities will find. The authorities do find the papers; but not before Stacy tries to retrieve them, acting on a confused, liberal impulse to avert what he perceives as an over-sized wrong. Meanwhile Ben inherits the girl and takes her on leave to Bangkok, where there is more and more struggling with his conscience and the racist killing in which he is participating. He defects to Sweden. Childress ends up in a Baltimore jail for killing a cop. The papers that he planted will be used against him, for Stacy has blundered into explaining the whole story to civilian police, who can use it in their gathering case against Childress, Finally Roxrealize Stacy's worst fantasy.

None of these three men really breaks free. Ben is imprisoned in his mind, he has already experienced severance-by-Harvard or by his "training," and he acts out of bland scruple. Childress is a creature of his name; he acts to stay in prison. Stacy acts out of sexual fantasy, and kills him-self: "I think about Childress and her together . . . The world is full of Gooks and niggers and they'll tear down everything the white man has ever built, I say to myself . . I wouldn't touch her now with a ten-foot pole.

My hands sweat on the trigger of the ejection seat, but for some reason I pause, then I can almost feel the explosion

He has very simply written a visual impression of the landscape of war in Vietnam. His flight descriptions are superb. There are some funny elements: a darkly comic monologue, for example, from Lieutenant Colonel

Milligan a wunderkind merce-nary with gin moss on his tongue. Davis's women are subsidiary; they are all prisons: of their men; they suffer, like their men, from terrible isolation and lovelessness. Davis writes with complete assurance. The geometry of his novel is cinematic—so is the writing, which is itself explana-tory, so that Davis sacrifices little for the immediacy he has achieved. His people speak from completely plausible states of mind, briefly, without extrava-"Coming Home" is our war novel. It suggests much more in its brief episodes than the curious lassitude of serial killing and the little drama of the three protagonists. It suggests that op-pression possesses a limitless hierarchy, that the Vietnam war contains, metaphorically, the image of our own social death. It suggests that we are alone with our misconceptions. So of course it does not celebrate courage, or physical endurance, or nobility among men, or, even, evil among men. "Coming Home" is a sure, swift design feeling.

Congressman Alleges Royals Linked to 'Organized Crime'

By Leonard Koppett

WASHINGTON, Jan 26 (NYT) -- Allegations by an Ariwome congressman that the owners of the Cincinnati Royals had business associations "with underworld and organized crime figures provided a startling turn yesterday to Senste hearings on a bill that would permit the american and National Baskethall Associations to merge.

Further sessions were postbon ed until February, delaying today's scheduled appearance of Bill Bradley of the New York Enicks and John Mackey of the Baltimore Colts, who were to present the views of basketball and football players in opposi-tion to the bill. In over to merge, the leagues must get a specific exemption from the anti-

Yesterday's surprise testimony was offered by Rep. Sem Steiger, a Republican, who said he had read that the owners of basketball teams were refuctent to submit their tax returns to prove the imancial necessity of a merger. Sen Sam J. Ervin, D., N.C. has been asking for the tax data since he began acting as chairman of the Senate antitrust subcommittee last Septem-

"I felt that in at least one case, I knew why this is so," said Steiger, and he proceeded to spell out how Jerry and Max Jacobs, who own and operate the Royals, also own Emprise Corporation, a Buffalo holding company founded by their late father, Lou Jacobs. The basic business was concessions in sports arenas and ball parks, but it now includes some 400 subsidiery corporations and investments in parimutuel betting operations, horse racing, dog racing and jai-alai.

Steiger said, "Their history is replete with business associationswith underworld and organized crime figures.

Emprise has been the subject of unfavorable reports by official bodies in New York, New Mexico. Arisona and Arkansas, and was indicted in September, 1970, by a iederal grand jury in Los Angeles, charged with a felony against the state of Nevada's gaming commission.

As concessionaires operating under the name of Sportservice, the Jacobses are involved with six National Football League teams and nine major-league baseball teams, and they have lent money at low interest to the Montreal Expes ($2 million) and Milwankee Brewers ($4 million),

The East's victory gave it a record of two triumpies, one loss and one tie in the All-Star Game since the contest changed to an East-West format in 1969.

Andersson's Alpine Takes Lead in Rally

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 26 (UPI).—Sweden's Ove Andersson, bidding for his second straight victory in the event, took a 2second lead today at the end of the second stage of the Monte Carlo auto rally. His factory-backed Alpine Renault, co-driven by Briton John Davenport, leads another Alpine, driven by Bernard Darniche of France.

The Alpine Renault works team, which last year swept the first three places, has three cars in the top four going into the final stage which starts tomorrow. 1,500-kilometer second stage to Chambery, France, and back had drivers battling through eight speed trials over the snow and ice of the French Alps. Sandro Munari, of Italy in a Lancia, who took the lead last evening, is 42 seconds back, with the third Alpine of Frenchman Jean-Claude Andruet 4 minutes 28 seconds behind the leaders. Only 52 of the 204 starters survived the 26-hour stage. Officials said only about 35 would be able to enter the final stage.

Waldegnard Is Out

One of the favorites to drop out was two-time winner Bjorn Waldegaard of Sweden, whose Porsche led before last night's snow, Waldegaard and co-driver Hans Thorszelius escaped unhurt when their Porsche 9118 hit a bank and broke its suspension while lying fifth today.

The remaining Porsche, driven by Gerard Larroussa of France fifth, trailed by another Alpine, driven by Jean-Pierro Nicoles of France.

A Japanese Datsun, driven by Finn Rauno Aaltonen, holds the seventh spot but is 17:10 behind

Timo Makinen, another Finn, driving one of two team Ford Escorts, was among 49 drivers caught in a police radar trap in the Alps.

Makinen's 5-minute penalty from rally officials dropped him to eighth place ahead of his Ford teammate François Piot of

Ack-Ack Barraged

WASHINGTON-Now that the is no reason to give up horse dent Nixon is starting to talk to horses. The other day he congratulated Black Jack, the riderless horse in President Kennedy's funeral cortege. on his 25th birth-Knowing the President's penchant for sports, it wouldn't surprise me if Mr. Nixon telephoned "Ack-Ack," who was just chosen

"horse of the year," by the Buchwald American turf writers. The call could go like this: "Hello Ack-Ack. This is President Nixon calling. I wanted to congratulate you on being named horse of the year. I think I can speak for every American in this country when I say how proud we all are of you. Hello

Ack-Ack, do you believe me?" "Neighbhhhhhhhhhhhhhh" "As President of all the people, as well as all the horses in our great country, I can tell you that I have been watching you for a long time, and I admire you not only for being number one, bot for the way you have run in the face of great adversity. > you care to hear them?" "Neighhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh"," "Good. Now here's my game plan. The race is a mile and a quarter, so you don't want to go out in front or some sprinter will try to thre you out. I'd say you lay back about third or fourth, five lengths behind the second horse. When you get to the three-quarter post start perking up. Try to get to the outside by the time you reach the mile post. Lay back about second or third no more than four lengths off the leader. Are you with me?"

"Neighbhhhhhhhhhhhhh "Now you start picking up four lengths, three lengths and in the final eighth pole you make your big move. The beapty of my plan is that if you follow this strategy you can win by a length and your jockey won't have to lay a whip on you. What do you think of it?"

"Neigh." "Oh I know what you're going You're going to say I gave the Redskins a play and they lost 13 yards, and I gave Don Shula a play and Miami lost the Super Bowl, and I gave Pakistan a play and they lost half their

Small Chance for Ordinary Tourists to Visit China

By John Burns G Globe and Mail, Toronto,

PEKING.—If the celebrated gentleman who conned an innocent in Paris into buying the Eiffel Tower were still alive he would doubtlessly have a good word about the people who are plying a nice little line in package tours of China, with at least a portion of the costs payable in advance

If that seems to be a harsh judgment on tourist agencies in Europe and North America which have advertized group tours, it is meant to be, for the simple fact is that most tourists have very little prospect of persuading the Chinese to issue them the visa that they need to enter the coun-

Nine months after ping-pong diplomacy broke upon the world and six months after the Chinese invited President Nixon to visit Peking, the authorities are continuing to deny visas to the vast majority of those who apply for them. -

Qualification

This is not to eay that China remains the closed society that it was during the Cultural Revolution—far from it. Every day new visitors cross the border from Hong Kong, joining the thousands who have been admitted in recent months, but every one of them has some qualification which lifts him out of the class of the ordinary tourist. The visitors have incloded businessmen, academics, political sympathizers, journalists, old friends of the Chinese leaders and every kind of celebrity, from an Italian crooner to a Nobel prize winning biologist. They have ranged from Huey Newton, leader of the Black Panthers, to Nancy Kwan, Hong Kong-born star of "The World of Suzie Wong." but none of them could properly be styled as

The point is worth making, for within the last month there has been another in a series of stories in the Western press which purport to show that China is opening up to the tourist trade. The story, widely circulated by the wire agencies, dealt with plans for the 1,200 passengers making a round-the-world cruise on the liner France to enter China after their arrival in Hong Kong.

Train

French Line officials in New York and Paris were quoted as saying that plans for the China visit were being worked out with the China International Travel Service, which handles the movement of all foreigners in China. The officials said that the Chinese had proposed that the passengers travel by train from Hong Kong to Cantoo, spending two nights there before flying on to Singapore to eatch pp with the ship.
One account said that Thomas Cook

Huey Newton in China ... 10-day visit in October.

"Nine months after pingpong diplomacy broke upon the world and six months after the Chinese invited President Nixon to visit Peking, the authorities are continuing to deny visas to the vast majority of people who apply for them."

and Son, a British tourist agency, was hoping to obtain a collective visa for the passengers. The account quoted a line official as saying that the Chinese had Dot indicated how much the two-day excursion would cost; but added that official doubted that the matter would be of much concern to the passengers, who were paying up to $20,000 each for the 91-day cruise,

Diplomats here were astonished when they heard of the plan, for it appeared to mark a complete reversal of what they have been told by Chinese officials, who have insisted in recent months that China is not in the tourist business and not about to enter it. So it was with no great surprise that the officials learned last week that the plan has been abandoned.

Attempts to get the Chinese side of the story proved unavailing, with officials de-nying any knowledge of the plan. However, diplomatic sources here say that While there was extensive correspondence between the French Line and the travel service, all of which came to naught when the time came to fix details such as timing and accommodation.

'Sincere'

"I have no doubt that the French Line people were sincere in thinking that the plan would come off," one diplomat remarked, "but everything I know about the Chinese attitude towards visa applications indicates that it will be scome time yet before they are ready to admit large tourist

An interesting sidelight on the story is that the Cook company, which was to have secured the visa for the group, became, last April, the first travel agency to advertise holidays in China. However, in an ad in The Times of London offering an 18-day tour for £350, the company took care to point out what a number of subsequent imitators have not—that the whole thing was "subject to [Chinese] government approval."

In explaining their position the Chinese rarely go beyond the simple affirmation that they have other priorities to attend to. But the most probable reason is not hard to guess: With their resources already strained by the influx of official visitors they simply could not cope with the additional demands that tourism would impose. Hotel accommodation would be the least of their problems since all the cities the tourist would be likely to visit are equipped with large hotels, most of which operate far below capacity. But experience with official visitors in recent months indicates that there would be a serious shortage of guides and interpreters, an essential for the kind of closely supervised itinerary tourists would be likely to get.

Looking to the future some observers here are inclined to see signs of a change in policy in the recent publication of an English-language map and guide to Peking. The map, the first to go on sale here since the beginning of the Cultural Revolution, is contained in an attractively produced folder bearing the words Tourist Map of Peking.

For the moment, however, it appears that the map is intended for the use of resident foreigners and official visitors, not tourists in the normal sense of the word.

PEOPLE: How to Live To Be 100

Longo's centennial celebration.

Longo "walked barefoot on burning coals and on the points of Persian spears or Turkish sabers.

He lay down on beds of nails,

drank molten tin and conjured spirits. For him, swallowing a sword was a mere trifle... He could even remove his own eyeballs and put them back." Among his other acts, Longo, who began touring in the 1890s, trained performing cockroaches and conjured a human fetus in a chemist's beaker, causing it to grow immediately to full term and then smashing the beaker to produce a fully-formed and live baby." But it was the sword-swallowing that most

"At first" explained Longo,

"you must tickle your throat

many times with long goose-feathers. Then you cautiously introduce into the esophagus a narrow wooden tube which has been lubricated with goose fat.

Later on, I started swallowing a broader tube made from wax and paraffin, and only after perfect-ing that did I introduce a polished sword with a dull blade,

two feet long and three-fourths-of-an-inch wide... Rob the sword briskly with wool to warm easier to swallow a warm sword

-and you, too, may live to be

It was enough to make a Tas-tevin cry. Oakland University, of Rochester, Minn, had scheduled a gala wine sale for this spring, comprising the contents of the wine-cellar of the late lumber baron Alfred G. Wilson whose home is now part of the

that the storage room had un-accountably been built next to before each act, because it's fascinated Yunost.

Demetrius I. Longo

"There was the furnace room. no ventilation at all in the celler," said Muer. "It was 85 degrees when we went in. Every besie of wine and champagne must be ruined"-including five bottles of Chateau Mouton-Rothschild 1992 worth at least $1,000 a bottle fore it turned to vinegar, Salvage able, however, are 390 bottles of Old Saratoga, a rare, prune-based whisky worth $30 a bottle to a boozer and perhaps $100 as a collector's item.

Tom Smith, of South Benfiet, England, bought his wife Ann an old iron chastity belt as a birthday present. Yesterday, he look ed her in it, just to show how the contraption was designed to work. Mark Smith, their 3. year-old son, happened along spied the key and tossed it out the window. Tom searched for a while with no luck, then went to work at the gizmo with a metal saw, only to break two blades. In desperation Tem sped Ann to the local Fire Eritling firemen took a pair of glant size cutters to the 26-year-old housewife, to her cternal embarrassment. "When Tom gave me the belt I said it was what Td always wanted," said Ann afterthe emergency operation. "It was a joke. But you know, it wasn't too funny."

The Mexican TV star known as "The Saint" ("El Santo") for terday asked his director for a histus in the filming of a line episode entitled "The Saint In. the Car Thieves." Someone is seems, had stoled his car. school. Called on to apprise the wine, Chuck Muer, a local res-taurateur, discovered this week seems, had stolen his car.
